

T U E S D A Y, JUNE 23, 1772.

JUNIUS'S DEDICATION to the ENGLISH NATION, prefixed to a new Edition of his Letters, with the Author's Corrections, &c. lately published in London.

I DEDICATE to you a collection of letters, written by one of yourselves for the common benefit of us all. They would never have grown to this size, without your continued encouragement and applause. To me they originally owe nothing but a healthy, sanguine constitution. Under your care they have thriven. To you they are indebted for whatever strength or beauty they possess. When Kings and Ministers are forgotten, when the force and direction of personal satire is no longer understood, and when measures are only felt in their remotest consequences, this book will, I believe, be found to contain principles, worthy to be transmitted to posterity. When you leave the unimpaired hereditary freehold to your children, you do but half your duty. Both liberty and property are precarious, unless the possessors have sense and spirit enough to defend them. This is not the language of vanity. If I am a vain man, my gratification lies within a narrow circle. I am the sole depositary of my own secret, and it shall perish with me.

If an honest, and, I may truly affirm, a laborious zeal for the public service has given me any weight in your esteem, let me exhort and conjure you never to suffer an invasion of your political constitution, however minute the instance may appear, to pass by, without a determined, persevering resistance. One precedent creates another.---They soon accumulate and constitute law. What yesterday was fact, to day is doctrine. Examples are supposed to justify the most dangerous measures, and where they do not suit exactly, the defect is supplied by analogy. Be assured that the laws, which protect us in our civil rights, grow out of the constitution, and that they must fall or flourish with it. This is not the cause of faction, or of party, or of any individual, but the common interest of every man in Britain. Although the King should continue to support his present system of government, the period is not very distant, at which you will have the means of redress in your own power. It may be nearer perhaps than any of us expect, and I would warn you to be prepared for it. The King may possibly be advised to dissolve the present Parliament a year or two before it expires of course, and precipitate a new election, in hopes of taking the nation by surprise. If such a measure be in agitation, this very caution may defeat or prevent it.

I cannot doubt that you will unanimously assert the freedom of election, and vindicate your exclusive right to choose your Representatives. But other questions have been started, on which your determination should be equally clear and unanimous. Let it be impressed upon your minds, let it be intilled into your children, that the liberty of the press is the palladium of all the civil, political, and religious rights of an Englishman, and that the right of juries to return a general verdict, in all cases whatsoever, is an essential part of our constitution, not to be controuled or limited by the Judges, nor in any shape questionable by the Legislature. The power of King, Lords, and Commons, is not an arbitrary power. They are the trustees, not the owners of the estate. The fee-simple is in us. They cannot alienate, they cannot waste. When we say that the Legislature is supreme, we mean that it is the highest power known to the constitution---that it is the highest in comparison with the other subordinate powers established by the laws. In this sense, the word supreme is relative, not absolute. The power of the Legislature is limited, not only by the general rules of natural justice, and the welfare of the community, but by the forms and principles of our particular constitution. If this doctrine be not true, we must admit, that King, Lords, and Commons, have no rule to direct their resolutions, but merely their own will and pleasure. They might unite the legislative and executive power in the same hands, and dissolve the constitution by an Act of Parliament. But I am persuaded you will not leave it to the choice of seven hundred persons, notoriously corrupted by the Crown, whether seven millions of their equals shall be freemen or slaves.---The certainty of forfeiting their own rights, when they sacrifice those of the nation, is no check to a brutal, degenerate mind. Without insinuating upon the extravagant concession made to Harry VIII. there are instances, in the history of other countries, of a formal, deliberate surrender of the public liberty into the hands of the Sovereign. If England does not share the same fate, it is because we have better resources than in the virtue of either House of Parliament.

I said, that the liberty of the press is the palladium of all your rights, and that the right of juries to return a general verdict is part of your constitution. To preserve the whole system you must correct your Legislature. With regard to any influence of the constituent over the conduct of the representative, there is little difference between a seat in Parliament for seven years, and a seat for life. The prospect of your reformation is too remote; and although the last session of a septennial Parliament he usually employed in courting the favour of the people, consider that, at this rate, your Representatives have six years for offence, and but one for atonement. A death-bed repentance seldom reaches to restitution. If you reflect that, in the changes of Administration, which have marked and disgraced the present reign, although your warmest patriots have, in their turn, been invested with the lawful and unlawful authority of the Crown; and that other reliefs or improvements have been held forth to the people, yet that no one man in office has ever promoted or encouraged a bill for shortening the duration of Parliaments, but that (whoever was Minister) the opposition to this measure, ever since the septennial act passed, has been constant and uniform on the part of government. You cannot but conclude, without the possibility of a doubt, that long Parliaments are the foundation of the undue influence of the Crown. This influence answers every purpose of arbitrary power to the Crown, with an expence and oppression to the people, which would be unnecessary in an arbitrary government. The best of our Ministers find it the easiest and most commodious mode of conducting the King's affairs; and all Ministers have a general interest in adhering to a system, which of itself is sufficient to support them in office, without any assistance from personal virtue, popularity, labour, abilities, or experience. It promises every gratification to avarice and ambition, and secures impunity. These are truths unquestionable. If they make no impression, it is because they are too vulgar and notorious. But the inattention or indifference of the nation has continued too long. You are roused at last to a sense of your danger. The remedy will soon be in your power. If Junius lives, you shall often be reminded of it. If when the opportunity presents itself, you neglect to do your duty to yourselves and to posterity---to God and to your country---I shall have one consolation left in common with the meanest and basest of mankind---Civil liberty may still last the life of

This positive denial of an arbitrary power being vested in the Legislature, is not in fact a new doctrine. When the Earl of Lindsey, in the year 1675, brought a bill into the House of Lords, "To prevent the dangers which might arise from persons disaffected to government," by which an oath and penalty was to be imposed upon the Members of both Houses, it was affirmed, in a protest signed by twenty-three lay-peers (my Lords the Bishops were not accustomed to protest) "That the privilege of sitting and voting in Parliament was an honour they had by birth, and a right so inherent in them, and inseparable from them, that nothing could take it away, but what, by the law of the land, must vitiate take away their lives, and corrupt their blood." These noble Peers, whose names are a reproach to their posterity, have in this instance, solemnly denied the power of Parliament to alter the constitution. Under a particular proposition, they have asserted a general truth in which every man in England is concerned.

JUNIUS.

From the GENTLEMAN'S MAGAZINE, for February last. In the CODICIL annexed to the last Will of ROBERT NORTH, late of Scarborough, Esq; deceased, proved in October, 1765, among other things therein contained, are as follow:

To wit, I GIVE to Mrs. R. G. my English walnut bureau, made large to contain clothes, but hope she will not forget when she makes use of it, that Graces and Virtues are a Lady's most ornamental dress, and that that dress has this peculiar excellence, that it will last forever, and improve by wearing.

I give to Lieutenant W. M. my godson, my sword, and hope he will (if ever occasion should require it) convince a rash world he has learnt to obey his God as well as his General, and that he entertains too true a sense of honour, to admit any thing into the character of a good Soldier, which is inconsistent with the duty of a good Christian.

And now having, I hope, made a proper disposition of my Lands and Money, these pearls, of great price in the present esteem of men, let me take this opportunity of expressing my gratitude to the grand original Proprietor; and here I must direct my praises to that benign Being, who through all the stages of my life, hath encompassed me with a profusion of favours, and who by a wonderful and gracious Providence, hath converted my very misfortunes and disappointments into blessings; nor let me omit what the business just finished seems more particularly to require of me, to return him my unfeigned thanks, who, to all the comforts and conveniences of life, hath superadded this also, of being useful even in death, by thus enabling me to dispose of a double portion, namely, one of love to the Poor, and another of gratitude to my Friends.

All my faults and follies, almost infinite as they have been, I leave behind me, with wishes, that, as they had here their birth and origin, they may here be buried in everlasting oblivion. My infant graces, and little embryo virtues, are, I trust, gone before me into Heaven, and will, I hope, prove successful messengers to prepare my way. Thither, O Lord, let them mount up with unintermitting constancy, while my soul, in the mean time, feasts herself with extatic reflections on that ravishing change, when from the nonsense and folly of an impertinent, vain, and wicked world, she shall be summoned to meet her kindred spirits, and admitted into the blissful society of Angels and men, made perfect; when, instead of sickness, gloominess, and sorrow, (the melancholy retinue of sin) and a house of clay, glory and immortal youth, shall be her attendants, and her habitation the palace of the King of Kings: This will be a life worth dying for indeed! Thus to exist, tho' but in prospect, is a present joy, gladness, transport, extacy! Fired with the view of this transcendent happiness, and triumphant in hope, these noble privileges of a Christian, how is it possible to forbear crying out, O Death! why art thou so long in coming? why tarry the wheels of thy chariot? To that Supreme Being, whose treasures and goodness are thus infinite and inexhaustible, be all Honour and Glory forever, Amen, Amen.

A remarkable Anecdote, recorded by Diodorus Siculus.

THE affectionate King Sabacon, shocked at the useless effusion of blood, in those capital punishments which were so frequently inflicted in his country, and finding the number of robbers no otherwise diminished than by the loss of his subjects, the cause still remaining, converted their punishment to slavery, and that with so happy an effect, that robberies were scarcely heard of, while the Public imperceptibly grew enriched by those very hands which had formerly plundered private persons; and strong useful limbs were confined in chains to serve those with whom they once enjoyed privileges in common, which now they had so justly forfeited.

ON DETRACTION.

LET him cry black-moor-devil whose skin is white; And bandy-legs, who treads himself upright: Let him reprove that's innocent:-----in vain The Gracchi of sedition must complain.

The man who vilifies an absent friend, Or hears him scandalized, and don't defend: Who, much desiring to be thought a wit, Will have his jest, regardless whom it hit: Who what he never saw, proclaims for true, And vends for secrets what he never knew: Who blabs what'er is whisper'd in his ear, And fond of talk, does all he knows declare: That man's a wretch:---of him be sure beware. If I'm belov'd, shall I turn pale for this? False honours please, and false reports disgrace And trouble, whom?---The vicious and the base. Let men of others to speak ill forbear, Or their own follies they'll be sure to hear.

EPIGRAM.

THAT Niger hath one only vice, Is by his very face confest, But here alas! the mischief lies, 'Tis one compos'd of all the rest.

L O N D O N, April 7.

YESTERDAY Lords North, Hillborough, the two Secretaries, and two other Noblemen, were closeted with his Majesty near two hours.

This morning some dispatches were received at St. James's from the Lords of the Regency of the Electorate of Hanover. APRIL 8. Advice is reported to have been received from Lisbon of a dangerous insurrection at Rio de Janeiro in the Brasils; which was not quelled when the letters, which were brought by a Spanish frigate to Ferrol, came away.

Yesterday a motion was made in the House of Commons by the Hon. Charles Fox for leave to bring in a bill to repeal the Marriage Act; after some debate, which lasted till seven in the evening, the House divided, for the bill 62, against it 61, and the bill was ordered in by a majority of one only.

The last letters from Copenhagen advise, that Struensee wrote to the King on his birth-day, acknowledging his crimes and the peculiar heinousness of his guilt, in conspiring against so gracious a Sovereign, by whom he had been honoured with the highest confidence, and as he dares not presume even to hope for pardon, begs his Majesty will be pleased to order his chains to be lightened, or his sentence immediately put in execution.

Orders are given for a detachment of the Royal Regiment of Artillery, and a quantity of ordnance and military stores to be got in readiness to be shipped for Bengal and our other settlements in the East-Indies.

Sir Eyre Coote is to go to the East-Indies again.

It is reported that Captain Elphinstone, late in the service of the Empress of Russia, will shortly be promoted to the rank of an English Rear Admiral, and be employed on an expedition.

Yesterday Lord Mansfield sat again as Speaker of the House of Lords, in the absence of the Lord Chancellor, who continues indisposed with a fever.

Some letters from Gibraltar mention that a skirmish happened lately near that place, between twelve soldiers belonging to the garrison, and a party of Spaniards, in which four of the former were killed, and ten of the latter.

APRIL 9. This day the House of Commons are to go into a committee of the whole House upon the consideration of a motion made on Monday last to bring in a bill to encourage the subjects of foreign states to lend money upon security of freehold or leasehold estates in any of the colonies in the West-Indies, and to render effectual the recovery of the payment of such money.

Advice is said to be received that his Sardinian Majesty's health being much impaired, he had declared his intention of surrendering the crown to his eldest son, which it is reported will take place in the beginning of July next.

A Morning paper says it is certain that Prince Masserano, Ambassador from the King of Spain, has on the part of his Royal Majesty, proposed to the King of Spain, that he should send a fleet of war entering the South Seas, to seek for making discoveries in that part of the globe; and has even gone so far as to declare, that after so just and amicable a remonstrance, the King of Spain will be under the absolute necessity of vindicating his own sovereign rights to those seas, and consequently shall give orders to seize all ships of war that shall be found making discoveries in or through the South Seas, without a special licence from the Crown of Spain. Notwithstanding this hedonary, bantering, Quixotick language, Captains Cook and Pownall have received their final orders for sailing, and most probably will meet with a warm reception from the Spaniards, after they shall have passed the Straights of Magellan. Spain, it is known, has, for this twelvemonth past, had a strong and almost indomitable propensity to go to war with Great-Britain, and that event most certainly would have happened many months ago, had it not been for the debility of France.

It is confidently affirmed that some secret advices have been received, respecting the apparent designs of a certain power to disturb the tranquillity of our American Colonies.

It was currently reported this morning, that Lord Grantham, Ambassador at the Court of Madrid, will soon be recalled, and Lord Shelburne appointed in his stead.

Lord Barrington, it is said, is making preparations for a journey to Ireland, on what occasion has not transpired.

APRIL 11. We are informed that in the course of nine days past three of the King's Messengers have been sent away with dispatches for Sir Robert Murray Keith, his Majesty's Ambassador at Copenhagen.

We hear the petition of the Court of Lord-mayor and Aldermen of London, presented on Wednesday last to a General Assembly by Mr. Sheriff Bull, sets forth the high price of wheat and flour; and represents to the Assembly, that if the importation of wheat, wheat-flour, and Indian corn, were allowed duty-free, it would be a means of preventing a further rise in the price of bread.

On Thursday Sir George Colebrooke, Bart. was chosen Chairman of the Court of Directors of the East-India Company for the year ensuing, and Lawrence Sullivan, Esq; Deputy Chairman.

On Thursday his Grace the Duke of Hamilton, was presented to their Majesties at St. James's, being introduced by his father-in-law, his Grace the Duke of Argyll, and was graciously received.

Earl Cornwallis is to set out in a few days for Copenhagen, on some affairs of consequence.

Express orders were sent to Plymouth on Thursday last, for two third-rate men of war to sail with all speed for the Mediterranean.

APRIL 15. On Monday night, a motion was made in a great Assembly, that the affairs of the East-India Company be enquired into by a select committee, which after some debates, was carried without a division. Then a bill was presented to the Assembly relative to the East-India Company, which was read the first time, and ordered to be read a second time on the 4th of next month.

It is said that 40,000*l.* Savings of Grants will be applied towards the expences of Land Forces not provided for by Parliament. And that 805,593*l.* remaining in the Exchequer out of the Sinking Fund will be applied towards the supply for this year.

It is also said, that 42,445*l.* will be granted to replace in the Sinking Fund the like sum paid to make good the deficiency of the fund for paying annuities.

We hear that 500*l.* will be granted to the Turkey Company to enable them to carry on their trade.

Extract of a letter from the Hague, April 10.

"According to the last advices from Copenhagen, sentence of death will soon be pronounced against the Counts de Struensee and de Brandt, Counsellor Struensee, the Count's brother, Col. Falkenhild, and the Professor Berger. These advices add, that Colonel Keith, the British Minister, having very little hopes of an accommodation between the King and Queen, waited only for an answer to some dispatches to return to England.

"They write from Hanau, that the Hereditary Princess of Hesse-Cassel, is in the fourth month of her pregnancy."

"We hear, by the most undoubted intelligence, that all hopes of a peace in the East of Europe are vanished; the ignorance and haughtiness of the Ottomans prevent it. They know not their own situation, and they will not acquiesce on equitable terms. The intrigues of France carry every thing in the Divan, and Austria is made the dupe to the weak politics of Louis XVIII.

Last week the bills of the two greatest houses perhaps in the European world, were refused to be done at the Bank, and the alarm occasioned by this circumstance is so general, that many houses of large property must (it is apprehended) stop through a want of immediate circulation.

We hear the Secretaryship of the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland has been lately, more than once, hinted to Mr. Burke, which he unhesitatingly refused, except Lord Rockingham was to be the Viceroy. The object of administration was, by this offer, to have an advocate for their designs on the other side of the water, as well as to take off a spy upon their actions here.

April 17. On Wednesday was reported to the House of Commons, the following resolutions from the committee appointed to consider of the present state of the corn trade, viz. That the importation of Wheat and Wheat Flour, Rye and Rye-Meal, into this kingdom, be admitted, for a limited time, free of duty.

That the importation of Rice, from any of his Majesty's colonies in America, into Great-Britain, be admitted, for a limited time, free of duty.

The committee appointed to inspect into the East-India company's affairs have a power to act, notwithstanding any adjournment of the House, and also have a power to send for persons, papers, and records.

Sir Fletcher Norton, highly to his credit, is, we hear, very anxious for tracing the miseries of the east to their fountain head. The House of Peers are adjourned to Thursday the 30th inst. and the House of Commons to Tuesday the 28th instant.

It is now currently reported, that Sir William Young, Bart. Governor of Dominica, will be created a Peer of Ireland, and get the first vacant red ribbon after his return to England, which is soon expected; as also, that he will be promoted to some considerable employment in the state, as a reward for his great and distinguished services in the West-Indies.

It is proposed that the present duties upon wheat and wheat-flour imported into this kingdom when wheat is at or above 48s. per quarter, shall cease. That the duties upon rye imported, when the price of it is here is at or above 38s. per quarter shall cease. That a duty of 6d. per quarter be laid upon all wheat imported, when the price of wheat here shall be at or above 48s. per quarter. That a duty of 2d. per hundred weight be laid upon all wheat flour imported, when the price of wheat here shall be at or above 48s. per quarter. That a duty of 3d. per quarter be laid upon rye imported, when the price of it shall be at or above 28s. per quarter. That the exportation of wheat, wheat meal, and wheat flour, when the price of wheat shall be at 44s. per quarter be prohibited. That the exportation of wheat, meal, and flour, when the price of wheat shall be under 44s. per quarter be permitted. That the exportation of rye, when it shall be at 28s. per quarter, be prohibited. That for and upon all wheat, flour, and rye imported, and afterwards exported, shall be drawn back all duties paid on the importation of them. And that the importation of wheat, wheat flour, rye, and rye-meal, be admitted for a limited time.

April 20. The Select Committee for examining the petition of the East-India Company met on Saturday morning for the first time, at the Speaker's Chamber, at eleven o'clock.

There being two bills introduced, and referred to the Select Committee. As also the proceedings of the Government and Council of Calcutta in reference to the gold mines.

By authentic letters from Berlin, we are assured, that it is owing to the truly political conduct of his Prussian Majesty, that the Emperor of Germany has not taken part with the Turks this spring. His Imperial Majesty has, for some time past, been recruiting great numbers of Hungarians, Transylvanians, and other nations dependent on him, so that his army was become more numerous than it had been during the two last wars. The intent of this great military augmentation was soon penetrated by the Prussian Monarch, who, without seeming to interest himself in the matter, dispatched privately a number of Agents into Silesia, who were directed to buy up all the corn they could find in the neighbouring parts of Germany; when they had effected this, the Hero of the House of Brandenburg ordered a placard to be printed by the Magistrates of his Provinces, purporting, that in consequence of the failure of the harvest, a bounty would be given upon every sack of corn brought into Silesia; upon this he acquired so great a stock of that grain, that he almost drained the most fertile parts of the Emperor's dominions, and increased the price of bread last winter in Germany to an unusual height. The Court of Vienna, not being aware of their neighbour's political manœuvre, still went on in their military preparations, and did not, till they had actually given orders, the beginning of last month, for an hundred thousand men to march to the assistance of the Ottomans, discover, by the reports of their Commissioners, they had not corn sufficient to supply a quarter of that number with subsistence. The confusion occasioned by this unforeseen scarcity is easily imagined than described: The march of the Imperial troops has been countermanded, and, by this singular stroke of sound policy, the assistance which the German Emperor had stipulated to give the Porte, will necessarily be delayed till after next harvest; a circumstance which, it is imagined, will be attended with the happiest effects to the arms of the Empress of Russia, as the Turks will be obliged directly to enter into a treaty of pacification upon the terms she has lately proposed to them, or be glad, in all probability, to accept of much harder before the end of the ensuing campaign.

By the above transaction, the truth of which may be depended on, the King of Prussia has given a fresh proof of his great talents for Government, and shewn he is not more distinguished in the Field than in the Cabinet, by taking a measure which will sufficiently repay his ally, the Empress of Russia, for the obligations she owed her last war, for her withdrawing her troops from his territories when he was on the brink of destruction.

Letters from Vienna declare, that the alliance of the Emperor of Germany with the Turks, is now no secret there, and that it has cost the latter above two millions of chequins.

The Sally, Fletcher, with rice for Stetin, is on shore near the Castle at Elbinur, and a great many more, occasioned by the ice.

When the motion relative to the Corn-bill was under consideration in a Great Assembly on Wednesday last, it was urged, among many other arguments in its favour, "That the effect of regulating the importation and exportation, by a fixed scale and system, would keep the price of wheat at or about 38. 6d. the bushel, at an average, and all other grain in proportion; that the farmer, knowing, from a fixed rule, what he had to depend upon as to a market, and the sale of his produce, would be no longer discouraged and embarrassed in cropping his ground, but would set about in earnest to raise that produce which he was assured he had an encouraging and free market for; that the merchant, having a fixed scale of prices, and leading to an assured sale for importing and exporting, would know how to speculate, and would speculate accordingly; the consequence of which would be, that when an importation became really necessary, it would really take effect; which has not been and never will be, this case by our temporary laws."

We hear that the following is a genuine list of the committee chosen to enquire into East-India affairs, viz. Col. Burgoyne, Sir W. Meredith, Sir George Savile, Lord George Germaine, Mr. Rose Fuller, Mr. F. Vane, Colonel Barre, Mr. Solicitor General, Lord How, Mr. R. Sutton, Mr. Attorney General, Mr. Thomas Pitt, Mr. W. Ellis, Sir Gilbert Elliot, Mr. G. Rice, Mr. Poliney, the Hon. Mr. C. J. Fox, Mr. Cornwall, Lord Folkestone, General Conway, Mr. Hotham, Mr. H. Onley, Mr. G. Johnstone, Mr. Alderman Trecothick, Mr. Edward Bacon, Mr. A. Curzon, Sir John Turner, Captain Phipps, Mr. Gregory, Lord Clive, Mr. Strachey.

On Saturday morning at five o'clock a messenger arrived at St. James's, with some dispatches from the Lords Regents of Hanover.

It is reported, that the following men of war are ordered to sail immediately for Copenhagen, viz. Torbay, Centaur, Egmont, Adia, Worcester, Albion, Somerset, Triumph, Resolution, and Marlborough; the Glory, Thames, and Southampton frigates; the Caracae, Racehorse, and Strombolo bombs.

April 21. Lord Howe had two conferences in the course of last Week with a Great Personage, which gave rise to the report that his Lordship is to have the command of the fleet said to be destined to sail for Copenhagen. Some of the papers give a list of the ships for this expedition; but others as confidently say, it is a Change Alley report, which had its effect in lowering Stocks on Saturday one and a half per cent.

A Correspondent observes, that there are several persons who are possessed of such an happy knack of imposing upon the world, that they can, through life, obtain a Character to which they are on no account entitled. The young man who assumed the title of Earl of Anglesea, wanted to have it confirmed by the sanction of Parliament. With this view he paid his addresses to one of Lord Hertford's daughters; but upon his Lordship's being recalled from the Lieutenancy of Ireland, Lord Anglesea, altho' the nuptials were fixed upon, deserted Lord Hertford's daughter, imagining that her father's interest was now at an end. Afterwards this honourable young Nobleman turned his thoughts to Lord Lyttleton, whose connection with Lord Chatham he thought might do the business, and effectually establish his very disputable claim to the Honours and Earldom of Anglesea. For this purpose merely he paid his addresses to Miss Lyttleton. Lord Hertford being informed of this, made Lord Lyttleton acquainted with the young Hibernian's behaviour to his daughter, which had been to the last degree dishonourable. Lord Lyttleton seemed to give attention to the affair, but, as a large estate was in question, he Christian-like forgave the young man, and married him to his daughter. The next point was to establish his claim to the Peerage. Lord Chatham, whose son Lord Lyttleton has always been, was applied to. The efforts proving, however, ineffectual, Lord Lyttleton is now a constant suitor to Lord Mansfield, for his interest with the Crown to grant a peerage to his worthy son-in-law.

We are assured that great numbers of soldiers have lately been sent to Bombay, Bengal, and Madras, in all the English East-India ships that have lately sailed for those parts; and that the Devonshire and Marquis of Rockingham, the two last ships that left England, had each of them on board one hundred and thirty soldiers, who were lately raised in Germany, all stout, hardy young fellows.

The last Paris Gazette mentions, that by a vessel from the Coast of Guinea, accounts have been received, that the Pholies, a people descended from the Arabs, have lately appeared in great numbers, on the banks of the River Gambia, and have committed several hostilities against the English, whom they threaten to dispossess of the Gold Coast, which they assert was part of the inheritance of their forefathers.

The slave people, says the French account, are exceedingly powerful, rigid Mahometans, well acquainted with the cultivation of Cotton, Corn, and Tobacco, and the breeding of Cattle, and no strangers to the profits made by the Gold, Ivory, and Slave Trade, from which, and their intrepid bravery, it is thought they will become very troublesome neighbours to the Subjects of Great-Britain.

The squadron which is ordered to be fitted out, is to rendezvous in the Downs, and to consist of one ship of ninety guns, four of seventy four guns, three of sixty guns, two frigates, two sloops, and three bomb-ketches. This fleet is to be commanded by Admiral Hardy, and it is said will be ready to sail within fourteen days.

The definition of the above squadron is kept a secret by Administration; it is generally believed to be intended for the Baltic Sea, while some sharp-sighted Politicians conjecture it is equipped in order to protect our territories in the eastern part of the globe, where, it is well known, our restless neighbours the French have lately sent in the privatest manner, several large ships, and a great number of land-forces, with a view to recover the footing they lost there a few years ago.

The Nabob, whose behaviour to his father (who kept a little alehouse in the Country) has lately been the subject of much conversation, is, we are assured, upon the lowest calculation, worth no less than 900,000. sterling; and not only suffers his own brother to wear a livery, but also acquiesces in his sister's acting in the capacity of a cook-maid to an eminent Merchant in the City, where the Nabob accidentally seeing her, soon after his return from Asia, generously gave her the sum of one guinea!

Orders were last week sent to Ireland, for the strictest guard to be kept, to hinder the raising recruits by the French and Spanish Emisaries, which are now said to be swarming in that Kingdom.

Yesterday some dispatches arrived at the Secretaries Office from the Earl of Stormont, his Majesty's Ambassador at the Court of Vienna.

Sir Joseph Yorke, his Majesty's Ambassador at the Hague, being on his return to England on his own private affairs, took his leave of the President of the Assembly last Thursday.

Orders are given to the officers of the three regiments of Foot-Guards, to complete their respective companies, that they may be trained and exercised, previous to their being reviewed by his Majesty.

Yesterday Lord Greville, one of the Lords of Trade, set out for the South of France to visit his father the Earl of Warwick.

A letter from Vienna remarks, that it is the prevailing opinion in all the Hungarian dominions, that the Emperor has come to the resolution of taking the advantage of the present troubles in Turkey, and will soon pour in a numerous army into the Turkish territories, and thus avail himself of such parts of the Ottoman Empire (in Europe) as he shall be able to acquire by conquest: While the Emperors of Russia conquers other parts of this Empire (in Europe); and Ali Bey makes himself master of such other parts of it as lie in Egypt, and all Syria. Thus it seems the fate of the Ottoman Empire is determined on; and as so many fires have lately happened in Constantinople, which have been discovered to have originated from the very subjects of the Grand Signior, and as the troops of the Porte cannot be brought to learn the modern military discipline, it is imagined that this mighty Empire will fall to pieces in the course of the succeeding year.

April 22. The latest accounts from Rome confirm those of the perfect re-establishment of his Royal Highness the Duke of Gloucester's health; and likewise specify the extraordinary and unusual honours (to any but crowned heads) that are daily paid to him, not only by the Roman Princes and Nobility, but by the Pope and Sacred College.

A Cabinet-council will be held next Friday evening, at the Queen's palace, to ultimately determine on the proper measures to be pursued, in relation to our disputes with Denmark.

The Queen of Denmark, it is said, has been afflicted for some time past with a melancholy that is likely to put an end to the malice of all her enemies.

They write from Hamburg, of the 10th of this month, that according to advices from Copenhagen of the 7th, the great commission assembled on the 6th, and sat from four o'clock in the afternoon till ten at night; that there were sharp debates among the members, and that the majority voted for a divorce between the King and Queen. These letters add, that the contents of the sentence were not yet known.

Large sums are doing at the various coffee-houses round the Change, on the destination of the fleet now ordered into the Downs.

An edict was published at Copenhagen the 9th instant, by his Danish Majesty, strictly commanding, upon severe penalties therein mentioned, the immediate return of such of his subjects as are mariners, and in the service of foreign powers.

The above mentioned order, it is well known, must very materially affect the Dutch, as it is supposed, on a moderate computation, that no less than 6000 Danes are constantly employed by that republic, in the whale and herring fisheries.

The guards are ordered to patrol the streets of Copenhagen all night, to prevent an insurrection among the people.

All the marines, both officers and men, in and about London, are ordered immediately to join their respective divisions.

Sunday last the mariners at Woolwich were at work in drawing out cannon and ball, for the use of the fleet now fitting out.

On Monday the Lord Mayor was much insulted by the mob, both in coming to St. Bride's church, and on returning to the Mansion-House; the high price of bread was incessantly dunned in his ears, with repeated hissings and groanings; an orange, which hit his Lordship's cheek, was flung at him on Ludgate-hill, and a mouldy loaf thrown into his coach in St. Paul's church-yard. It is a pity the lower class of people will not consider the dangerous consequences of thus ill-treating their chief magistrate, especially for a supposed evil, which is absolutely out of his power to remedy, as the affize of bread can be no other way ascertained, but by the price that corn bears at the Exchange in Mark-lane.

Extract of a letter from Copenhagen, April 7.

"Yesterday afternoon the Grand Commission met, and sat till eleven o'clock at night, and it is generally believed that the state prisoners affairs are entirely decided. Each person gave his vote in writing. The Council on both sides read their accusation and defence. Last Thursday Counts Struensee and Brandt received orders to appear before the commission on the 9th inst. on which Count Struensee seemed much affected. On Sunday the Counsellors Uldahl and Bang were with the prisoners to receive instructions for their defence. Colonel Pentz, who is appointed Marshal to the Queen Carolina Matilda, has a stipulated salary of 1200 rix dollars, and the revenue of his regiment. Captain-Lieutenant de Carstenfield is appointed Master of the Horse to the Queen, and the Sea Captain Winterfeld, Gentleman of the Chamber. The three Court Ladies de Schmettau, de Sperling, and de Moelling, have double salaries allowed them. The whole expence of the Queen's household is stipulated at 9000 rix dollars. Counsellor Uldahl has laid the defence of the state prisoners in writing before the Commissioners, in a copious manner. Things begin to appear now quite in an other light than they did before."

Extract of a letter from Warsaw, March 30.

"Colonel Drewitz has lately defeated a corps of 500 horse of the Confederates near Ilza. The 1st of April the prisoners taken in this action were brought here, among whom is Col. Nowicki, who was one of the principal persons in the plot to assassinate the King. The Prussian troops advance precipitately into this country, under the command of General Anhalt."

We hear that Lord Clive will shortly be created an English Peer, by the name, title, and title of Earl Clermont.

Both Houses of Parliament will rise for the summer on Thursday the 21st of May.

Bristol, April 16. We are informed that Britain, who is in our goal to take his trial at the next assizes for forgery, still persists in his being a principal in setting Portsmouth-dock on fire, and that he has sufficient materials at his command to make a full discovery of the same.

GLASGOW, March 12. On the 13th of February last, died at Kingborough, in the Isle of Skye, in the 83d year of his age, ALEXANDER McDONALD, of Kingborough, Esq. This gentleman's goodness of heart was remarkably conspicuous on an ever memorable occasion. After the battle of Culloden, when the Chevalier was reduced to such extremities of distress, that he knew not where to lay his head, Mr. McDonald had the humanity and resolution (notwithstanding numerous detachments from the British army hunted him like a partridge on the mountains) to afford him an asylum for a day and a night, at the risk of his life, and the ruin of his family. What rendered this instance of hospitality more illustrious and disinterested, was despising the immense premium of 30,000. offered by government for apprehending the person of Charles, by which he might at once have acquired a ministerial fortune. Independent of every political principle, such an example of fortitude of mind deserves to be recorded.

EDINBURGH, April 14. By an officer, who left Belfast last Wednesday, we learn, that the Rioters are now mostly dispersed; near three hundred of them have been apprehended, and are in different prisons in order to be tried. This gentleman also affirms, that there was no engagement betwixt the army and the rioters on the 23d of March (as was given out) or at any other time; and, by the prudent management of General Gifford, all is expected to be quiet very soon.

DUBLIN, March 31. On Saturday his Excellency Lord Townshend went in the usual state to Parliament, and gave the Royal assent to the act for punishing the Northern Rioters, after which both Houses were adjourned to the 5th of May.

WARSAW, March 14. The Confederates have carried off St. Stanislawski, who was at his Country-house at Kalina, six leagues from hence. Prince Jaspas Lubomirski, whom the Confederates carried off some days ago, is set at liberty, after being forced to take the oath to the Confederacy and pay 2000 ducats. It is said that he has already protested against this act by a manifesto.

March 25. The Court of Versailles has recalled all the French officers who entered into the service of the Confederates, and demanded the deserters of that nation. The Court of Vienna has likewise demanded its deserters, and particularly those who were among the garrison of Cracovia.

March 30. They write from Dantzick, that the Prussians daily demand large contributions. The Convents suffer most, and that of St. Bridget has been obliged to sell all the silver utensils, &c. The Dutchy of Wermeland swarms with Prussian troops.

VIENNA, March 14. Immediately after the arrival of the last courier from Constantinople, our Court dispatched another to Petersburg, with orders to pass through Berlin. It is said that he carries the conditions on which the Porte consents to sign the preliminary of peace; and that if the Emperors of Russia accept them, there will be a congress at Breslau.

PRAGUE, March 28. The situation of this kingdom is still the same. In several of the circles the inhabitants are forced to supply the want of bread by eating the bark of trees, &c. They devour all the horses, dogs, and cats they can catch. This dreadful famine is concealed as much as possible; but a dismal mortality has arisen from it. Above 100,000 persons are reckoned to have died of it within the space of a year; and according to the report of the circles 4000 now die in eight days time.

COPENHAGEN, April 4. The 30th of last month Sir Robert Keith, the English Minister, dispatched a courier to his court. Next day the Courier sent from our cabinet arrived here from London; and the following day Mr. Keith received some dispatches from his Court by an express, whom he this day sent back again to London. The day before yesterday, the grand commission sat from four in the afternoon till eleven at night. It is said that it will not meet any more after the 6th instant.

Mr. Uldahl, Attorney General, who is charged with the defence of the Queen and of Count Straussen, and who is for that purpose discharged from his oath, that he may be able to perform his duty the better, spoke the 16th of this month, before the great commission, in favour of the accused: In his speech he made use of these expressions, "In whatever light I view the affair, I find so much matter for reflection, concerning the manner in which the ----- has been treated, that I cannot entirely approve of that proceeding." He concludes with saying, "Being charged by the King's order, with the defence of the cause, be persuaded, gentlemen, that I shall undertake nothing without a scrupulous examination. Neither partiality, nor affection, but the laws, and my conscience alone shall guide my pen, in my vindication of those persons whose defence I take in hand." Counsellor Bang is to plead in behalf of the Count de Brandt.

HAMBURG, April 10. We have a report here, that when the Commissioners waited on the Queen of Denmark, at the Castle of Kronenburgh, the 31st of March, her Majesty spoke to them as follows: "If you are come to pay your respects to me, I admit you; but if you come with any other intentions, I shall answer nothing. You have my declaration signed by my own hand; I have nothing further to say to you. Adieu." However probable the above may be, all reports from Copenhagen must be received with great caution. Her Majesty is entirely recovered from the cholera, with which she was attacked some days since.

Letters from Riga, dated the 24th ult. advise, that thirty thousand Russians, commanded by General Elpt, the Count de Tottleben, General Reinder, the Prince of Isenbourg, and the Prince of Anhalt Bernbourg, have passed by that Place, with a train of large artillery, directing their march towards Poland.

PHILADELPHIA, MAY 25.

Extra of a letter from a correspondent in Chester county, dated on Thursday last.

"On Saturday last as Henry Philips and Richard Kelly, two labouring men, were at work together, on the plantation of Mr. David Davis, in Tredyffrin township, in this county, a quarrel happened between them, in which the latter struck the former, who thereupon went home, and told Mr. Davis, his employer, that Kelly had struck him, and that he was determined to go to a justice and get a warrant for him. Mr. Davis advised him to stay until morning, and in the mean time, consider of it, (expecting by that time his passion would subside); on which Philips took a gun, charged it, went to the woods where Kelly was, and shot him dead on the spot. He then returned, and desired Mr. Davis to bind him, for that he had killed Kelly. At first his information was discredited, as he always had borne the character of a harmless fellow; but on finding it to be true, he was secured and committed to Chester goal. The Coroner's inquest brought in their verdict Wilful murder."
